MEDIA COMMENT:

“The Inn is the kind of place you hope to find on a trip like ours – happy, relaxed with good chefs and evenings full of excellent wine and wit. It was so comfortable – huge rooms and lots of space to breathe outside.” Getaway

“The Ivory room at Rissington is not so much a room with a view, but a room that becomes the view. The bedroom flows out onto a covered verandah and then on down to a grove of mango trees. The bathroom becomes an outside shower, an irresistible invitation.... while being entertained by a raucous pair of purple-crested loeries.” Sunday Times (South Africa)

“What I like about Rissington is its lack of fussiness. You can really kick off your shoes and relax... you get all the essential comforts and excellent food you need without all the extra luxuries you pay a fortune for. Consequently, prices are reasonable.” Classic Feel

“Rissington Inn is a fantastic base. The thatched homestead, overlooking a pretty valley has 14 comfortable rooms, the welcome’s warm and the cuisine’s unfaultable.” The Guardian (London)

“At Rissington, Chris Harvie has created a very personal hideaway from the strains and stresses of urban life. He has not compromised on standards or quality but has resolutely set his prices at a level which is affordable to any traveller.” Saturday Star.

“Always there’s the same glorious exhale of breath, kick off of slops, throw-off of stress. Rissington is that very rare thing: a hotel devoid of artifice.” British Airways Horizons

“Arriving here is like coming home, though in this case home has great service, 5-star food and the comforts of a hotel...Chris says 30% of his local and international guests return. We’ve already booked our next stay.” Food & Home

“The best was the outside shower, designed in such a way that you can see out and no-one can see in. I could have stayed another week.” Bikes and Babes - Bike SA magazine

“The best.... Rissington Inn, haven of fine food and luxurious, but sensibly-priced accommodation.” Up Front (British Airways In-flight Magazine).

“The Inn feels like home. Guests relax in the lounge, browse through the bookshelves....I found one gentleman fast asleep (mouth agape in a bout of blissful snoring) and slowly being devoured by a comfy chair.” Getaway

“Chris Harvie at Rissington Inn is the most charming and erudite host and serves wonderful meals in great comfort” Gwynne Matthias Conlyn, SAfm

“Tired of all the larney hotels...Rissington Inn’s high standards and affordable prices are a welcome exception”. Getaway

“I will recommend Rissington anytime. You will feel loved, safe and free.” The Sowetan

“Rissington Inn.... is all the work of Chris Harvie...and you can see his hand everywhere... under the trimmed thatch of the eaves.” Sunday Times (London)

“Something completely different: Rissington Inn ... Harvie, an amusing chatterbox, has taken the formality out of the retreat experience in keeping with the wild ambience of his property.” (Linda Stafford, Condé Nast House and Garden)

RISSINGTON Inn

RISSINGTON INN – 28 YEARS OF OUTSTANDING HOSPITALITY

Rissington Inn was founded, in 1995, by current owner Christopher Harvie. The former tobacco farm, which had been a failure as such due to the annual hailstorms, was later put down to ginger, which failed for lack of water, and then citrus which also failed. As a country lodge hotel, however, the story has been somewhat different. Rissington Inn has been a tremendous success story.

Chris Harvie began his career at Cybele Forest Lodge, where he was General Manager between 1982 and 1993. He then went on to Fugitives' Drift Lodge at Rorke's Drift, where he was General Manager and became a registered tour guide for South African Military History. In 1995 he decided that the time had come to go it alone.

The buildings at Rissington were in a state of appalling disrepair and, with the help of a team of almost 75 builders, he spent 2 months knocking the place into shape and redesigning the gardens, with the aim of opening the lodge in time for the 1995 summer season. This was achieved. The former tobacco-drying barn was converted into the first 5 rooms and considerable work was done to the main house. The lodge opened for business on 1st September 1995.

The aim was to create a reasonably-priced alternative to the upmarket and increasingly expensive lodges in the area – to bridge the gap between these and the ubiquitous bed and breakfasts. Rissington was, from day one, affordable to the South African pocket but still offered all the facilities you would expect from a top lodge, and great emphasis was placed on the provision of a high quality menu. Hospitality is the order of the day at Rissington. Testament to this is the fact that almost 30% of guests return year after year. Many returning guests are obviously from South Africa but increasing numbers come from overseas.

In 1999 an additional two rooms were added – the garden suites – which took better advantage of the wonderful views enjoyed from the property. Occupancies continued to grow and in 2001 and a further three middle-range rooms were added, with the same views.

Four more garden suites were added in 2003, taking Rissington to 14 rooms. And then in 2007 the two hillside suites – two-bedroom suites with two bathrooms each – were added to improve the family friendly aspect of the lodge. In May 2011, the original five rooms underwent major renovations with a new roof and upgraded bathrooms and patios. In the winter of 2013, a decision was taken to add minibar fridges to all the rooms and air-conditioning to the garden and hillside suites and then in 2015 this was extended to all rooms.

With another four superior rooms finished in March 2018 and taking Rissington to 20 rooms, the lodge is now complete. There will be no further expansions. This is the maximum possible without jeopardising the levels of personal service, for which Rissington has become known. A new and larger pool has been built, more activities added (table-tennis, pool, croquet and more), the gardens have been reorganised and are looking magnificent, the bar is a popular retreat after a hard day's travelling and the restaurant still offers its popular eclectic menu. We have survived and bounced back after the 2020 worldwide tourism downturn and the hospitality is better than ever. Average stays are becoming longer as more and more people take better advantage of all that the region has to offer.

HEALTH AND SAFETY ASSESSMENT

In these days of increased awareness of Health and Safety issues, Rissington voluntarily submits itself regularly to a full assessment by approved Occupational Health and Safety Consultants, especially in the light of the Covid-19 Pandemic.

Whilst South African controls may not be as strict as they are elsewhere in the world, we understand that it is important to our clients that we comply with the regulations applied in more safety-conscious (and litigious) countries.

The qualified consultants who carried out the assessment have many years of experience in the Health and Safety field, one specializing in occupational health and both holding membership of IOSH (Institute of Health and Safety).

Areas covered include public liability, safety at work, health and hygiene, risk assessments, staff training, first aid, fire precautions, manual handling, and DSE. Whilst some areas for improvement were identified and acted-upon, we were reassured that our current Health and Safety systems are robust, as far as is reasonably practical, and our aim is to adhere to best practice within the hospitality industry.

For your peace of mind every aspect of our operation has been inspected to ensure that we understand the implications of all current international regulations and we are committed to a programme of ongoing improvements.

Rissington has a full Health and Safety Policy following the assessment. A copy is available on request.

RESPONSIBLE TOURISM POLICY

Rissington has complied with and adheres to a policy of sustainable tourism development and responsible tourism practices.

It is Rissington's aim to comply with all of the requirements of the Proudly South African campaign and Fair Trade in Tourism.

A copy of our policy in this regard is available on request.

Crime, Accessibility and Malaria - The dispelling of myths

MALARIA is no longer a major issue in South Africa. The only high-risk malaria area in Mpumalanga is the Kruger National Park, and, even there, very few cases are reported nowadays. A substantial spraying process is under way in all the camps and private reserves and breeding grounds have been drastically reduced. Reported cases of malaria have dropped radically in the past five years. Malaria is now very easily cured – as easily as the common cold - if it is picked up early. The tablets are becoming increasingly expensive and often serve only to mask the symptoms of the disease. The judicious use of a spray can substantially reduce the chance of being bitten by the malaria mosquito. Six million people live in the Lowveld and take no anti-malarial drugs, so malaria should really not be an off-putting factor when planning a holiday.

CRIME in Mpumalanga is far less prevalent than in any other major tourism area in South Africa. A few isolated incidents over the past few years have led to a major shake-up of the police and to the establishment of tourism monitors and this, in turn, has meant that there have been very few recent incidents of serious crime against tourists in our area. Mpumalanga is as safe as any comparable tourism region in the world.

ACCESSIBILITY is improving all the time. The roads are among the best in the country and a great deal of work is being done to improve them even further. Transport links to the area have also been improved by the building of the nearest airport, KMIA Kruger Mpumalanga International Airport (airport code MQP), still commonly known as Nelspruit and Nelspruit Kruger and situated to the east of White River. The airport offers daily flights to and from Johannesburg, Cape Town and Durban, as well as frequent flights to Livingstone in Zambia and Vilanculos in Mozambique. The recent re-opening of Skukuza airport and the accessibility of Phalaborwa Airport and Hoedspruit's Eastgate Airport also link the region with Cape Town and Durban as well as Sun City and Polokwane.
