AFTERNOON TEA

The tradition of taking Afternoon Tea was invented over 200 years ago by Anna Russell, the 7th Duchess of Bedford. It very soon became a fashionable way to entertain.

The Mount Nelson's Afternoon Tea service continues this tradition with an enviable selection of fine loose-leaf teas from across the globe and a sumptuous array of sweet and savoury delicacies. Finger sandwiches are filled with rare roast beef, finely sliced cucumber, delicate smoked salmon and creamy egg mayonnaise.

Follow with sweet treats such as velvety chocolate cake and lemon meringue.

The hot beverage menu boasts over 70 loose leaf teas and single origin African coffee beans.

A photograph of a colony of penguins on a rocky beach. The scene is dominated by large, light-colored boulders of various shapes and sizes, some covered in moss or lichen. The penguins, which appear to be African penguins, are scattered across the sandy beach and the shallow water. The water is a clear, light blue-green color. The background shows more rocks and some sparse, green vegetation. The overall atmosphere is natural and serene.

Unique Pop-Up Concept

'EDGE' AT OASIS

With a focus on underutilised ingredients, progressive techniques and recipes passed down over generations.

The menu, conceptualised by Chef Vusi and inspired by his own heritage, is an ever-changing curation of dishes that highlight indigenous ingredients, reimagined in a contemporary, minimalist and respectful way.

Chef Vusi worked in some of the best restaurants in South Africa and Europe. He also ranked amongst the top 7 chefs at the San Pellegrino Young Chef finale in 2018. He's one of the founding members of the African Culinary Library, a resource dedicated to preserving and promoting African food culture and cuisine.

These dishes pay homage to Chef Vusi's past experience and curiosity, as well as the rich history of this great continent.

The menu serves as a platform for indigenous ingredients, sourced from local markets, traditional artisans and small-scale farmers. With a focus on cooking over flames, the menu invokes a strong sense of community and tradition, reminiscent of African storytelling around the fire.
