

Communications

Communication with the outside world is possible in some form whilst on safari. Most of East Africa has good mobile phone coverage in towns and in the Masai Mara there is 3G, with limited connectivity in the Serengeti National Park. Most lodges and camps have some form of Internet available.

Please note that you will need full international roaming to make phone calls and this can be expensive. Most people go on holiday to escape from things, but if you anticipate having to be in contact with the outside world, make sure to let us know so we can plan accordingly.
