

WALK THROUGH OLDUVAI GORGE

Revealed to the world thanks to the works of Louis Leakey and his wife, this site encapsulates nearly 2 million years of History.

In other words, Olduvai Gorge is an open book telling us about Mankind's long history...

Description of the walk :

Even if the walk can be done any time of the day, we do recommend leaving early morning or doing it mid-afternoon, when the sun is not too hot. Olduvai Camp is the perfect place to start.

A Massai guide and an armed ranger will lead the walk and will bring in interesting interaction & comments along the walk.

Start gently from camp through the plains where giraffes as well as dik diks' can often be spotted. Then enter the Gorge proper where path can become steep at times.

Step by step, different layers of the rock will reveal themselves and unveil, for some parts, rich areas of fossils. Deep down the gorge you will come across a stream, dry most of the time. The second half of the trek consists in walking along this stream bed up to the other side of the gorge.

There is very intense sensation walking through this gorge where one can truly feel mankind standing up and about to seize the world...Homo Erectus standing for the very first time is just by your side...

A car will wait for you in front of Olduvai Museum. The visit can be a good way to get deeper knowledge on Olduvai site as well as the main discoveries which took place there.

Duration of the walk: approx. 2h30
