Students from the Park's Masters in Conservation Biology program document the park's flora and fauna, help track elephant herds and lion prides, and study complex relationships between fungi, plants, animals and insects. Programs like the Gorongosa Paleo-Primate Project shed light on the origins of humankind as it evolved out of Africa's Great Rift Valley.

GORONGOSA FOR THE BIRDS

Gorongosa National Park is a birder's paradise with a breath-taking number of species, including the Green-headed Oriole - found nowhere else in southern Africa. See birds like the Southernground Hornbill, the Grey Crowned Crane, the Lilac Breasted Roller and a number of seasonal migrants.

*To truly enjoy this memorable experience, we recommend booking a private birding vehicle.
