SERENGETI NATIONAL PARK
TANZANIA

Wildlife

magnified

Simbavati Migration Camp is a beacon of luxury and adventure. This mobile camp moves its prime location twice a year, perfectly placed near the Mara River during the wildebeest migration, and just north of Lake Ndutu in the south of the Serengeti during the calving season.

Six luxurious mobile tents are positioned to embrace the tranquillity and majesty of the wilderness while twice-daily game drives seek out the wildebeest and a myriad of other wildlife on safari. Guests can watch the birdlife and animals directly from the camp too, allowing for moments of pure awe and contemplation.

WHY VISIT?

Prime Locations in Tanzania

Simbavati Migration Camp is located in the in the north of the Serengeti National Park during the wildebeest migration season from June to October. The luxury mobile camp is set just a few hundred metres from the Mara River in a prime location to witness thousands of wildebeest crossing as part of their Great Migration. The camp is moved to the southern plains of the Serengeti from December to March, perfectly placed just north of Lake Ndotu during the calving season when the wildebeest give birth to thousands of calves each year.
