Return to camp for lunch and a siesta.

Head out for sundowners after consuming an embarrassingly large spread of tea and cakes. Park at the edge of a lagoon and watch herds of elephant and a myriad of birds coming down to drink whilst the sun sets and you are given an informal talk on the geological history of the area.

Spot small crocodiles basking in the sun on sparkling white sandbanks and hippos jousting for territories with spectacular splashes and clashes of jaws and some serious dental equipment. Learn about the ecology of the waters and look at all the important components of the ecosystem.

Have a picnic lunch on a sandy bank in the river and cool off at a safe swimming spot.

Arrive at your private, lantern-lit camp on an island, deep in the delta, just after sunset. Shower and relax around the fire before dinner under the stars.

Sleep in a mosquito net tent and luxuriate in the freedom of a night in the open, surrounded by nature at her very best.

Rise early and after a short walk around the island, hop back into your boat for a meander through the waterways, absorbing the tranquillity of the lagoons and narrow, papyrus-fringed, hippo trails.

This will allow you to immerse yourself completely in the incredible spectacles that the Delta has to offer.

Search out hippo and bathing elephants to understand the importance of the Okavango to these enormous creatures.

Marvel at the majesty of elephants from only a few yards away as they wash and feed on the roots of aquatic plants.

Drift back to the vehicles.

Picnic and siesta in the arms of a giant shady baobab. Spend the afternoon seeking out hyaena dens and, as the day cools down, watch for hunting cats.

Head on to camp for a refreshing shower and delectable dinner.

DAY 5

After a hearty breakfast, head out for the whole day to explore the wider area around your second camp.

Seek out the elusive predators such as lion, cheetah and leopard and observe and interpret their behaviour.

Picnic and siesta under a shady mangos-teen.

Spend your afternoon indulging yourself completely in seeking out your favourite species.

Leopard spotting, lion tracking, cheetah chasing and dog discovering. If you want to watch lions mating for two hours or prefer to watch bee eaters hawking insects on the wing then so be it.

Return to camp for dinner - tired, but happy.

DAY 6
