Granada, Nicaragua

About Mombacho Lodge

Just north of the great city of Granada, Nicaragua lies Mombacho Lodge in full view of the volcano of its namesake. Here you will find some of the best White-winged dove hunting in the world. This simple open-air lodge affords great comfort and service located in a private compound just off the highway that leads to the nearby hunting fields. Come and visit one of the most beautiful and safe hunting areas in the Americas.

The Outfitter

Your outfitter will be the hard working Taino Family consisting of father Bruno and his two sons Frederico and Carlo. Together they have a combined 40 plus years of operating dove and duck hunts in both Mexico and Nicaragua. They are truly a team and understand the hospitality business and often host trips to nearby Granada and its famous Calle La Calzada, along with visits to the Masaya Volcano and Laguna de Apoyo Crater Lake. They have the proper equipment, experience and staff to make your stay an enjoyable one.

The Hunting

During the last 43 years Trek has arranged or inspected dove hunts in every country in Central America and we have noted a change in the migration patterns of the White-winged dove. Traditionally they migrate south to Central America in late October and back to the U.S. in late March, but in recent times they are becoming more and more domesticated. With improved irrigation technology farmers are now able to grow crops like, peanuts, sorghum and corn year round offering White-wings plenty to eat and less of a reason to fly hundreds of miles north. Most of the hunting fields are within 30-45 minute drives north towards the towns of Masaya and Tipitapa. Hunters can expect to fire 10 boxes a hunt at these fast and challenging flighted targets.

The Accommodations

Mombacho Lodge consists of ten single room accommodations in two separate wings with each room having A/C, private bath and plenty of room. There is small swimming pool and courtyard with a gazebo that separate the two wings. The lodge also features a full bar and open-air restaurant located upstairs that offers a wonderful view of the volcano surrounding countryside and allows for the soothing breezes from the Pacific and Lake Nicaragua. The cuisine at Mombacho is well balanced with choices of excellent local meats, seafood, pasta and game. They are most famous for their wonderful dove "bocas" and rumritas. Mombacho is perfectly located with easy access to Managua, the hunting fields and Granada.

Getting There

Getting to Mombacho Lodge is super easy with daily non-stop flights from Atlanta, Miami, or Houston to Managua followed by a 40-minute van transfer to the lodge. Call the Trek office for a suggested airline schedule that fits the needs of your group.
